OPEN-AND-SHUT CASE

Luigi Massoni's Xila ST design for Italian kitchen manufacturer Boffi is a testament of the whole being greater than the sum of its parts. Simplified down to the essence of kitchen essentials, each element combines form and function in harmony. Playing with the concepts of revealing and concealing, open shelving, handleless doors and seamless sink integration gives the system a sense of balance, while the mix of glossy and matt materials (wood, aluminium, steel) creates an interesting play on textures. boffi.com

FARM FRESH

Dutch design atelier Studio Job is known for creating expressive pieces, often one-offs or limited-edition collector's items. Its now iconic Farm range reworks the rural aesthetic of traditional farm implements and objects in a seemingly incongruous material. The glamorous incarnation of spades, pots, milk pitchers and pails into a glossy bronze gives them an entirely new character. The collection that combines functional and merely decorative items as a collective offers a glimpse of rustic life reimagined. This pan mirror blends a humble pastoral and more high-end urban aesthetic through a simple silhouette and fabrication in either classic polished gold or on-trend rose gold.

SILVER SERVICE

Bringing Alessi's innate sense of playfulness to the table, the Columbina cutlery collection, designed for the studio by Massimiliano Fuksas and Doriana Mandrelli, gives classic dining implements a contemporary twist. Pared back to their most minimal form, this interpretation is an ideal reboot for modern entertaining. The set comprises 12 each of spoons, forks, knives, dessert forks, dessert knives and coffee spoons, as well as a ladle, serving spoon and fork in 18/10 mirror-polished stainless steel. alessi.com
